Scenario

The Company Technoedge dataset consists of several columns that provide a detailed overview of the hiring process, such as candidate information (name, education, experience), job details (designation, current CTC), and recruitment details (interview date, status, team leader, and recruiter). The dataset also includes information on the candidate selection process, such as selection, rejection, and hold status columns. The data contained in these columns can help HR professionals and recruiters make informed decisions about the recruitment process and track the progress of candidates throughout the hiring process.
